Student Learning Objectives/Outcomes

This is an introductory course that examines the media in its historical, societal and political environments. We will examine the impact of the media on you as an individual and on society as a whole. How do we use the media? Why do we use the media? What is the media? These are just a handful of questions that will be answered by the end of this class. The emphasis will be on your development as an active participant in a media-saturated society.
